International Court Called a 'Do Nothing'

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — The president of the American Bar Assn. says the International Court of Justice at The Hague "consists of 15 judges who sit there and do nothing. They have handled an average of one case a year since they were established."

The court is the United Nations' chief judicial organ.

ABA President Charles S. Rhyne, Washington, D.C., told the Ventura County Bar Assn. the court should be moved to U.N. headquarters "and should then be either expanded by membership vote in the U.N. or should be abolished."

Traces Stock Industry in Hempstead

Nearly two-million dollars was paid to livestock owners in this area by the Sutton Livestock Commission company during the year of 1957, Ray Lawrence told the Hope Kiwanis club at its Tuesday Luncheon meeting at Hotel Barlow.

Of the approximate $2,000,000 about 70 percent went to Hempstead county livestock owners and the other 30 percent to livestock owners in surrounding counties at sales at the Sutton Commission company.

This amount of money represents 30,000 to 35,000 head of livestock, cattle, hogs, calves and other animals which were sold at auction sales here in Hope.

Mr. Lawrence traced the history of livestock and its growth in this area over the past 20 years and described the present period as a leveling off time in which he said that raising cattle had reached the point where it was in good hands as most "drugstore cowboys" had disposed of their herds after the boom and drought in the early '50's.

He praised the livestock owners for their constant effort to raise better beef through improved breeding and better pasture lands.

Interested guests at the meeting were three industrialists, Earl Ragains, his son, Phil, and Carl Schultz of the Wire Products Company of Holland, Mich., who are installing equipment for a new industrial plant in the old Plunkett-Jarrell building.

Other guests included C. C. Spraggins of Hope, Ray Drew of Stockton, Calif., Dean Murphy was introduced to the club as a new member.

Mrs. C. J. Barnes of 1202 South Elm and Mrs. Lorraine B. Wylie, home demonstration agent, will conduct a workshop on making small pillows for comfort and a decorative touch Thursday, January 23, at the home of Mrs. Wylie from 9:30 until 3:00. All Home Demonstration Club Home Furnishings leaders are to attend and bring materials for making the pillows. Pot luck will be served at noon.

Nothing Makes You More Aware of Passing of Time Than Having a Child in Your Home

By HAY BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — A little pillar on the royal road to learning lives in our home.

Nothing makes you more aware of the passage of time than having a child in your home. On one day you have to do everything for it, and it seems almost the very next day it won't let you do anything for it at all.

Our daughter, Tracy Ann, now 4½ years old, has reached this stage. "All right," she says, "I can learn everything at once."

Her sturdy, self-confidence, leached a peak when, after weeks of terrible struggle, she finally learned to tumble a ribbon into a bowl. "All alone," Mrs. Tracy says about an hour daily practicing this womanly art.

Each success she brings to me for approval. The other night she suddenly pressed her cheek against mine and exclaimed in a kind of ecstasy: "Oh, daddy, isn't it fun to push the elevator button."

Probers Hear Union Cash Used for Pleasure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rack-ets probers developed testimony today that $120,000 of Operating Engineers' Union funds were used to buy and support a pleasure boat and a plane.

Red-haired Patrick W. Clancy, president of the union's San Francisco Local No. 2, testified the plane was used on one occasion for a trip to get $10,000 in checks cashed out of town.

He said "I presume" the objective was to conceal that the $10,000 was for use in the union's 1956 election campaign, and to make it appear as an expenditure of organizational work.

Clancy said he and others on the trip spent about 400 of the money for themselves.

The Senate Committee is exploring allegations of misuse of union funds and misdeeds in the labor-management field.

At the start of today's session the chief counsel, Robert F. Kennedy, told the committee he had eered yesterday in contending that real estate deals with union funds had produced "hidden profits" of $59,953.76 for two ousted union officials.

The hidden profit was approximately $40,000, Kennedy said, adding that the $59,953.76 figure failed to allow for expenses by those who swung the deal.

Kennedy contends the profits went to Victor S. Swanson, since fired as international vice president and who was San Francisco boss of the Engineers, and to Ed Doran, suspended business agent of San Francisco Local 3.

Kennedy said both men are to be called for questioning about the allegations that they reaped the profit by dealing through "dummies."

Without giving further details, Kennedy also said he wanted to explore "the manipulation of $21,000, which resulted in the union losing an automobile."

Local Bands Plan Concert February 6

Bands from both the Senior and Junior high schools of Hope will open their concert season with a joint program on February 6, in the high school auditorium, it was announced today by Mr. C. T. Cannon, director. Tickets went on sale at noon with the usual admission price of fifty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for students.

This concert will mark the resumption of a very popular series, presented each winter season by the young instrumentalists of Hope public schools. Generous audiences have thrilled in the past to performances by these two fine bands and have come to expect only the very best in both classical and modern music. This year promises to be no exception.

Band members have charge of ticket sales and will be canvassing Hope and the surrounding communities, starting today. Remember the date, Thursday, February 6, at 7:30 in the high school auditorium.

Kansas City Digging Out of Blizzard

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City and environs are digging out from under 15 inches of snow today after the worst blizzard in 49 years.

The storm left 17 dead in Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois as it whipped northward last night.

It left 10 to 12 inches of snow in southeastern Iowa; northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin before blowing itself out along the Great Lakes.

Most of the deaths were attributed either to accidents on slick roadways or heart attacks after shoveling snow or bucking drifts.

There were three in Kansas, five in Missouri, three in Iowa.

Brookwood Third Grade students will hold a March of Dimes benefit tea Thursday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. The following students will participate: Nancy Black, Cecilia Delaney, Sandra Gibson, Connie Janice, Beth Lawrence, Toni Leverett, Janis McClellan, Ann Mitonell, Betty Munro, Linda Sue Pearson, Rebecca Ponder, Sue Randolph, Denise Snyler.

Bids Taken on 22 Highway Projects

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas High Commission today opened bids on 22 road and bridge projects whose total cost was estimated at more than five million dollars.

The bid opening was the largest in several years and may be the largest in Highway Department history.

A number of major projects were included. Among them were six grade separation and traffic interchange facilities on the interstate system in Crittenden County; a connection for the new Benton-Hot Springs route with Highway 67 near Benton; two railroad overpasses at El Dorado; and additional work on the Riverfront Drive and third bridge jobs at Little Rock.

Howard — 4.78 miles of surfacing and three bridges on the Dierkes-County Point Road, Highway 4; Southeast Construction Co., Pine Bluff, $148,067.

Abortion Case Being Tried at Courthouse

Hempstead Circuit Court entered its third day at the Courthouse this morning and the trial of J. A. Smith, charged with abortion got underway. A jury was picked and the prosecuting witnesses were heard this morning. In all probability the trial will be completed today.

Two defendants entered pleas of guilty to grand larceny and burglary — Willie J. Gamble and Charles E. McDonald, both Negroes. McDonald was arrested Monday for the burglary last weekend of Hope Feed Co. Sentences will be handed down later.

The other cases were disposed of by the Court, M. E. Seay vs. Arvil Phillips, judgment for the defendant, Phillips. In the case of Tom Anderson vs. Travis King, both parties ruled partially at fault in accident. Anderson awarded damages of $85 and King damages of $175.

A. W. Pickard, 74, Dies in Local Hospital Tuesday

Andrew Warren Pickard, aged 74, a long time resident of Hempstead County, died in a local hospital Tuesday. He lived at Rocky Mound. He was a member of the Board of Deacons of Rocky Mound Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Nora Pickard, a son, Wilbur Pickard of Wichita, Kan.; five daughters, Mrs. Clifford Messer, Mrs. Jvy Mitchell and Miss Beryl Pickard of Hope; Mrs. Ted Purdie of El Dorado and Mrs. Clyde Messer of Leesville, La.; three brothers, Henry of Hope and George of Bodcaw and Frank Pickard of Springhill, La.; two sisters, Mrs. Trudie Sherman of Hope and Mrs. Sudie Fuller of Bodcaw.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Rocky Mound Baptist Church by the Rev. Doyle Ingram and the Rev. Ferrell W. White. Burial by Herndon Cornelius will be in Memory Gardens. Nephews will act as pallbearers.

Ike Sends Dulles to Middle East in Deep Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower dispatched Secretary of State Dulles to the Middle East today with a declaration of "deep concern" for the security of Communist - threatened countries in the area.

At the same time Eisenhower made a new pledge of "unwavering support" for the defense principles of the Baghdad Pact.

Dulles conferred with the President for 30 minutes, some 140 hours in advance of his scheduled departure for the Middle East.

He will attend a meeting of the five-power Baghdad Pact at Ankara, Turkey, next week. He will be an observer there, not an official participant, since the United States is not a member.

In a statement on his talk with Eisenhower Dulles said Middle Eastern countries are under "the threat of Communist imperialism" and the United States is "glad to help them" in their collective self-defense effort.

In that connection Dulles cited the Middle East resolution of last March asserting an American policy of defending the whole Middle East area against Communist aggression. The resolution was passed by Congress and signed by the President.

Shortly before Dulles went into his meeting with the President, which followed a session of the National Security Council, the State Department denounced as "totally false" a Soviet charge that Dulles is planning to force U. S. missiles bases on Middle Eastern countries.

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today denounced as "totally false" a Soviet charge that Secretary of State Dulles is going to the Middle East to force U.S. missile bases on the Baghdad Pact nations.

"It branded as 'incredibly arrogant' a Soviet declaration that the placement of nuclear and rocket bases in the Moslem states would be an insult to their religion."

This Soviet propaganda thrust, the United States suggested, amounts to an argument that the Moslem nations should be militarily inferior to the "atheistic system" of the Soviets who already have nuclear missiles.

Dulles arranged to leave for the Middle East after a conference with President Eisenhower.

He will visit Tehran at the end of this week, then go on to Ankara, Turkey, for a meeting of the Baghdad Pact nations' foreign ministers next week. His aim is to give fresh assurance of American support for the pact members' resistance to Soviet pressure and Communist penetration.

A formal statement from the State Department replied today to the Soviet blast.

Rogers Goes to Committee for Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Rogers went before the Senate Judiciary Committee today for a hearing on his nomination, a hearing that might touch off a flap-over civil rights issues.

Rogers, a familiar figure on Capitol Hill and a close associate of Vice President Nixon, took office last fall after the resignation of Attorney General Brownell.

His nomination for the post, submitted by President Eisenhower after Congress reconvened earlier this month, is subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Rogers was deputy attorney general under Brownell and some Southern senators on the judiciary committee indicated in advance of the hearing that they might question him about the legal basis for Eisenhower's use of troops to enforce school integration in Little Rock, Ark.

However, Sen. McClellan of Arkansas, a committee member, said:

"I don't know any reason at this time to vote against his confirmation. I think he is a very able man."

Opinions on Staff Chief Vary Widely

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators got sharply conflicting recommendations today from two former military leaders on the question of providing for a single chief of staff to head the nation's military organizations.

Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Force chief of staff in 1947-48, urged a single chief of staff for the secretary of defense instead of the committee system at present.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations in 1946-47, said it would be totally wrong to set up a single chief of staff. The retired military leaders gave their views in public testimony at the Senate missile-satellite inquiry.

On one thing they agreed—that there are now far too many assistant secretaries around the defense Department. Most of these offices were created by Congress on recommendation of former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

Nimitz proposed abolishing the present separate post of chair-

A New Role — Karloff Plays a Mad Doctor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The laboratory looked familiar, but the monsters were different. And—what's this?—Boris Karloff was playing the mad doctor.

As any student of the chiller movie knows, Karloff was the Christopher Columbus among monsters. He was the original in the 1931 trailblazer "Frankenstein," in which Colin Clive played the title role. (Don't fall into the common error of calling the monster Frankenstein; that was the name of its creator.)

Now it's Karloff playing the title role in the futuristic "Frankenstein 1970," so named to avoid confusion with the amputee other Franksteins. The actor was playing a seared victim of Nazi concentration camps. He limped around his lab with fiendish glee as he experimented with his home-made monster.

"Lift your left arm," commanded Karloff, and the monster did so. It was a large one played by Gert Frong (Mike Lane) and swathed in bandages so it looked like a mummy. Karloff also played the Mummy in his day, but that is neither here nor there.

When the scene was over, Karloff resumed his identity as the urbane, English-born actor and strode in dignity to lunch in the studio commissary, where he had cold cuts. He sighed over his fate.

man of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His contention ran that abolishing Nimitz said it would "speed up business" if the assistant secretaries of defense were removed from "the chain of administrative control" and the decision-making power left directly in the hands of the secretary.

CHAPTER XXI

The legs of the man Sebastian had upset were thrashing wildly and he stumbled over these and went down to one knee, and from this position looked up into Jake Ruby's conformed face.

Sebastian got away his shot, driving it upward at his target, knowing it had to count, and that he'd not get a second chance. He saw Jake Ruby roll up on his toes as the impact of the slug lifted him. He saw agony strike across the man's twisted features, then swiftly fade as all expressions loosened and went slackly away.

Jake Ruby fell on his face, suddenly, heavily.

Ward Sebastian, lifting erect, backed against the bar, feet spread and shoulders swung forward as he stared down at the huddled figure of Jake Ruby.

"The man he'd driven into and knocked off his feet now scrambled up. Tone husky in his throat, Sebastian said:

"Sorry, friend. Didn't mean to upset you. But I had no other way."

"He was throwing a gun, wasn't he? All set to shoot you in the back? I didn't know yet how he missed!"

"The door of the place swung open and Dick Bruce came pushing in ahead of several other curious ones, among them Harley Ritter. Bruce was a medium sized man with a blunt jaw and steady eyes. He was marshal of the town.

He straightened and put his glance on Sebastian, who still held a naked gun in his hand. "You?"

Sebastian nodded. "I'm at the bar, just finished with a drink. He came up behind me, set to finish me. If he hadn't stopped to talk about it, he'd have made it good. But he wanted me to know who it was that gunned me down. I was so lucky I still don't believe it."

Curt Dennison came up behind the bar and Dick Bruce turned to him. "How did you see it, Dennison?"

"Exactly as Sebastian says," Dennison reached across the bar and gripped Sebastian's arm.

"Man, you got no idea how happy I am to see you on your feet, not down there on the floor!"

Dick Bruce had another look at Jake Ruby, then turned again to Sebastian.

"What was between you two? Why should he have been after you?"

"A long story. It doesn't particularly matter, does it?"

The marshal regarded him speculatively, then shrugged.

"Considering how it happened, I guess not."

Sebastian put his arm away and went out, the crowd opening to let him pass, looking at him with a mixture of expressions.

The rush of the wet wind was good in his face.

Men came out of the Timberlodge. Harley Ritter came out. He stopped beside Ward Sebastian, peering up at him, grimacing his dislike.

"How does it feel to have a dead man on your hands?" It was a shrill, almost yapping taunt.

"How does it feel, Sebastian?"

Silently Sebastian regarded him, man completely despising him. He put a spread hand against Ritter's chest, gave him a shove that sent him reeling, after which bending his head into the wind.

"Even though I have played all kinds of roles in television and on the stage," he said, "the producers here can think of me only in terms of so-called horror pictures. Mind you, an actor is lucky to be typed, but you would think that they'd realize I can do something else."

"I wouldn't think of playing a monster again. The monster was an interesting character at first. But then they reduced him to nothing but a stupid brute. No actor wants to play a stupid character."

"What they have done with these pictures is typical of Hollywood thinking. They have exploited them over and over again until the pictures mean nothing."

Sebastian moved away.

There was strain in the atmosphere of the gabled house on Hupper Oregon Street, and Ward Sebastian sensed it the moment he entered. Anne Biglow had opened the door to his knock, but her worded greeting was stiff and vaguely distant, and by the time he'd shaken his coat she was at the far end of the hall, stepping into the living room.

Moving through a gray depression since the shot-out in the Timberlodge, he had been almost boyishly eager for a warm and understanding greeting, and now he knew biting disappointment.

This was not lessened in any way when he followed Anne into the big room, for Harley Ritter occupied an easy chair before the fire, a freshly lighted pipe between his teeth. Ritter's only move to acknowledge Sebastian's entrance was to throw a quick glance that carried a hard, antagonistic glint. Anne, moving to the far end of the hearth, put Ritter and his chair between Sebastian and herself.

This could have been an entirely meaningless move, but to Sebastian it seemed significant.

A gust of feeling compounded of his depression and the raw cut of disappointment whipped through him. Out of this came recklessness and a quickening temper. He looked at Ritter and put the lash of words on him.

"Harley, when a lady enters the room with another guest, a gentleman gets to his feet. Or maybe you don't read that far in your book of manners?"

Ritter made as if to rise, Anne Biglow dropped a hand on his shoulder, pushing him back. She faced Sebastian accusingly.

"Ward, that was deliberately insulting. Please remember where you are!"

"I am remembering and beginning to wonder why I came. Why not give it to me straight, Anne—am I welcome or not?"

She faltered a little before this blunt directness.

"Why, why of course you are welcome. But do you have to start a quarrel the moment you enter the house?"

"The quarrel, my dear," he said, "started a long time ago. It started the day Ritter and I first laid eyes on each other."

U. S. to Send Yeast Cells Into Space

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The United States will put a simple form of life in one of its baby moons to be launched between now and March, it was learned today.

Dr. Hiden T. Cox, executive director of the American Institute of Biological Sciences, told the United Press Navy scientists are now altering satellite designs to accommodate a culture of yeast cells.

Cox said this simple form of life will yield "infinitely more significant data than putting a mammal, such as a dog, in space at the present time."

He conceded that Russia got a lot of propaganda mileage out of putting a dog in Sputnik II. He said there are indications that Russia will put simple life in future satellites.

Cox said "it is possible" yeast cells will be put in the next U.S. attempt to shoot a six-inch moon into orbit with a Vanguard rocket at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

He said he did not know definitely which of the four tests will carry the simple life into space.

The United States plans to make another attempt soon to put a test satellite into orbit, although officials have pointed out that this is not the primary purpose of the next test.

Russia has announced its Sputnik I disintegrated Jan. 4 and its second satellite which carried a dog will burn up soon.

Rear Admiral Dawson Bennett, chief of naval research, told the United Press some of the "boys in the back room" are pushing to get some kind of life into the test moon. But he said "as far as I know the next test will just be another test."

Sovereignty Suit to Be Heard Feb. 27

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A 3-judge federal court will convene here Feb. 27 to hear a suit which challenges the constitutionality of a 1957 legislative law creating the state Sovereignty Commission.

The suit was filed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The judges are U.S. District Judge Roy W. Harper of St. Louis, serving temporary at Little Rock; Judge Joseph W. Woodrough of Omaha, Neb., a member of the U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis, and U.S. District Judge John E. Miller of Fort Smith.

They were appointed by Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner of the Eighth Circuit Court.

Named as defendants in the suit are Gov. Orval Faubus, members of the Sovereignty Commission, and Pulaski Prosecutor J. Frank Holt.

The suit contended that the Arkansas Legislature, in passing the act which set up the commission, attempted to "retain illegally enforced segregation in the state."

It charged that the act denied to the NAACP and the classes it represents "rights conferred by equal protection and due process clauses of the 14th Amendment" and other rights secured under the U.S. Constitution.

The defendants, represented by R. B. McCulloch Sr., of Forrest City, have filed a motion asking that the suit be consolidated with a similar one brought by 10 Negro ministers.

NCAAP Says State Action Okayed Filing

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People contends that when the state allowed the organization to file articles of incorporation in April, 1957 it in effect pardoned the group for failing to file earlier.

Robert L. Carter of New York, general counsel for the NAACP, told Pulaski Circuit Judge J. Mitchell Cockrill yesterday that this contention was the basis of a request for dismissing a suit against the group.

"The suit was filed by Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett. It seeks a judgment of $5,000 as a penalty for failure to file the articles with the secretary of state when the NAACP allegedly first started operating in Arkansas."

Carter made his statement in a hearing on a demurrer which the NAACP filed objecting to the suit and asking for its dismissal.

Bennett argued that the state did not have facilities to check on various corporations to determine whether they had filed articles of incorporation and on whether they were operating in Arkansas. He contended the state still was justified in asking for the penalty.

Cockrill took the demurrer under advisement and promised a quick decision.

Trade Unionists March in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Ten thousand trade unionists marched through the streets of Nicosia today in protest against the murder by masked gunmen yesterday of two Greek Cypriots and the wounding of three others.

The victims were all prominent members of left-wing trade unions, which refuse to accept exiled Archbishop Makarios as the sole representative of Greek Cypriots seeking freedom from Britain.

The killings were attributed to EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground which contends Makarios is the only Greek Cypriot spokesman.

Chief of naval research, told the United Press some of the "boys in the back room" are pushing to get some kind of life into the test moon. But he said "as far as I know the next test will just be another test."

Light Snow in North Part of Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scattered light snow fell in northwest Arkansas last night following a heavier fall Monday night and yesterday.

Most of the snow had melted off streets and highways, and no roads were closed.

The weather was below freezing throughout the state last night, and the temperature fell to eight degrees above zero at Fayetteville early today.

State Police at Little Rock said U.S. Highways 62, 55 and 71 in northwest Arkansas were coated with a thin sheet of ice this morning. They urged motorists to be careful.

U.S. Highway 67 W at North Little Rock was closed because of high water.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said continued cold weather is expected today with slightly warmer temperatures tomorrow. Skies were clear to partly cloudy today.

High temperatures yesterday ranged from 26 degrees at Fayetteville to 46 at Blytheville.

Low readings early today included 8 at Fayetteville, 19 at Elgin, 21 at Fort Smith, 27 at Pine Bluff, Texarkana and Walnut Ridge and 29 at El Dorado and Little Rock.

No Incident at Central High Today

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Classes opened without incident today at Central High School after two consecutive days in which searches for explosives were made.

A spokesman at the court-integrated, 1,900-pupil school, said "all is quiet this morning."

An anonymous telephone call yesterday touched off a search for a stick of dynamite. Nothing was found.

On Monday, after a similar call, an unexploded, unfused dynamite stick was found in an empty student locker.

Supt. Virgil Blossom said "the bomb scares, appear to be the work of a few people who want to close down the school." He did not elaborate.

The School Board does not intend to close Central High, Blossom said.

In 1957 the United States produced 13 million bales of cotton in the crop year which ended July 31. The rest of the free world produced 16 million bales and Iron Curtain countries produced nine million.

Star City Youth Outstanding Farmer

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Max Lindsey, 17, of Star City, was named the state's outstanding young farmer by the Future Farmers of America at a banquet here last night.

Lindsey received a cash award of $200.

Three runners-up received $40 each. They are Leon Dowdle of Delight, Billy Roy Floyd of Searcy and Dwight Davis of Conway.

AIDC Lauded by Faubus at Manila

MANILA, Ark. (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus lauded the achievements of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission when he spoke at dedication ceremonies for a new garment plant here last night.

And, the governor said, the Little Rock integration crisis has had no visible effect on Arkansas' industrial expansion.

Faubus, principal speaker at the dedication of Stanley Manufacturing Co.'s plant, also predicted that Arkansas will keep moving forward in industrial development unless a business recession occurs.

The governor said the state has been getting an average of nine new industries each month since the AIDC was established in July, 1955.

In an earlier address at Memphis yesterday, Faubus repeated an assertion that President Eisenhower acted illegally in using federal troops to integrate Little Rock Central High School last September.

Faubus told the Memphis Rotary Club:

"No law can be found anywhere to justify the use of troops. The only statute giving the President any authority to use troops was repealed by the last Congress when it passed the new Civil Rights bill."

F60T SEARCH

CEDAR CITY, Utah, (UP)—Police Chief Tony Lambert, whose department has only one cruise, was patrolling the town on foot today looking for the black car marked "cedar city police" that someone stole yesterday from in front of the police station.

It fun to tie bows?" My wife, Frances, thinks Tracy is remarkably advanced because she has also learned to tie a bow-knot behind her back. "What's the point in that?" I asked. "Why not teach her to tie a bow standing on her head?" "Listen, Rover," said Frances, "don't you realize that from the time a girl puts on her first kitchen apron she has to tie a bow behind her back every day of her life?"

Well, isn't that just like a woman—ask her a silly question and she gives you a serious answer? Tracy's other passion at the moment is learning to write her ABC's, for she can't stand the thought she is unable to read. As a matter of fact—the little hypocrite—she won't even admit she can't. And she is gaining—when she pretends to be reading, she now holds the book right side up.

Tracy isn't satisfied with the hundreds of thousands of words already available in English. She bends the alphabet to her own small needs to make new words. "What is this word?" she asked, pointing at a note-book page in which she had scrawled in big "rambling letters": "p-b-C-l-t-r."

"That isn't a word. It doesn't mean anything."

"Yes, it does," she said positively. "What?" "Well, it," she hesitated, studied the letters, then announced triumphantly. "It means an alligator as tall as the Empire State Building."

Her new - grown independence has also shown itself in a change of marital plans. Until recently she had always planned on marrying her father, but the other day she boldly asked Mark Stumpf, a 6-year-old playmate down the hall, "Would you like to marry me?"

Mark showed little enthusiasm for the project, and when I asked Tracy what about her earlier program to wed me, she replied gravely: "Why, daddy, you know I can't."

"Why not?" "Cause I'm growing up, but you're growing down. And when I'm big enough to get married, you'll just be a little tiny baby boy, and I can't marry a baby."

Well, as they say—Out of the mouths of babes. There is nothing like an independent child to make a grownup feel helpless.

Charges U.S. Figures Were Misleading

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Albert Gore charged the administration today with using "misleading figures" in its progress reports on the national highway system.

The Tennessee Democrat, chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating the highway program, referred to Bureau of Public Roads monthly reports on the number of miles completed on the interstate highway.

The figures, Gore said, "don't refer to miles of completed highway at all." He said they are so-called "project miles, instead of facility miles."

Gore said while the figures "appear to indicate" a "substantial amount of mileage has been completed" they are actually "highly

Cox, circle chairman presided over the short business session and presented community mission projects for the next three months in the absence of the chairman Mrs. E. J. O'Grady.

Mrs. Henry Haynes presented the first two chapters of the Mission book "Look, Look the Cities."

The hostess served coffee and cake to eight members.

Fashions which feature gentle blousing and the trim hipline require a rounded uplift for the bosom and firm hip control. Hostess separates (left) by Greta Platter in splashy print feature gentle blousing above cummerbund and tapered trousers. The rounded brassiere (center) and long-legged pantie girdle are perfect for wear under these separates and equally good with two-piece cocktail dress by Anne Klein (right). This satin dress has essentially the same kind of lines and though the fit is easy, the figure is apparent. Pantie girdle insures smoothness for both thighs and hips.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl's Quick Marriage Gives Time to Repent

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I were married on the spur of the moment four years ago. I didn't love him at the time, but did have a mild infatuation, which soon wore off. We have a sweet daughter, two years old, and I've supported her since she was born. I work nights. Since our wedding day, my husband has never been a companion to me. He watches TV in the evening, reads, or goes out with the "boys." He pays absolutely no attention to our little girl. He has a very good job, lots of responsibility and I suppose he does have plenty on his mind, but shutting out his family isn't right. I've considered separation. A further complication has been added to the picture in the form of one of my bosses, a married man himself, with whom I have fallen in love — and this time I mean love. So, with the whole situation, I'm pretty well mixed up. Can you help untangle me? SUZANNE

Dear Suzanne: I'll try. Begin by telling your boss to peddle his love talk somewhere else — preferably at home; you're not buying any. Remember, you got into this mess in the first place because of an infatuation. Don't make the same mistake twice. It might get to be a habit. Secondly you be the one to make changes at home. Your husband certainly has no illusions about your feeling for him. Naturally he doesn't feel particularly companionable to a girl who said she loved him, married him, then fell out of love. Men are more romantic than you think. Suppose you try your hand at wooing, courting and showing some affection. Let your husband handle the breadwinning. Stay home, be a good wife and I'm willing to bet you'll soon realize you were in love with your husband all the time. "Marry in haste, repent at leisure" still has a lot of truth in it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My girl scout troop is planning a trip to the ice show. I want to ask a boy. Is this proper and if so who pays the expenses? IRMA

Dear Irma: Does your scout leader want any boys along? Ask her permission and advice. If a girl asks a boy to attend a show with her, she pays for the tickets, he foots the rest of the bills.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Whenever my husband and I have a disagreement over something trivial, he won't talk to me for days. This has been going on ever since we were married three years ago. How can I cure this childish habit? WENDY

Dear Wendy: When you see a subject coming up that might spell trouble, refuse to discuss it. Brush it off with a light "Skip it; if we get into a discussion, you'll sulk for a week." Then change the subject. When this happens two or three times, and he realizes conversational material is running misleading." Gore said he would ask the bureau at his roads subcommittee hearing today to make public the actual number of miles of highway completed and available for use by the public.

Gore told the American Road Builders Assn. he was "somewhat disturbed" by the fact that this far "but little actual road construction has been accomplished."

He said he realizes completion of engineering work and acquisition of rights-of-way must precede construction and that these things take time. But he added he feels more mileage should be under construction than indicated.

He noted he has a difficult time finding out just how much construction has been accomplished because the bureau's reports speak in terms of the percentage of appropriations funds which "has been obligated."

Gore repeated his promise to "oppose vigorously" administration "raids" on the highway trust fund to make a "pretense of a balanced budget."

American Can Bring Home Russian Wife

MOSCOW (UP) — Soviet authorities informed Viktorla Sandor today she could accompany her American husband to the United States and his home in Colorado.

However the authorities told Mrs. Sandor there were a few formalities that would take several days to complete before she could leave with the man she met and married in Moscow.

Her husband, John Sandor, is a former U. S. Navy fighter pilot essentially punctual person, cannot excuse lateness. Tell her either she's ready on time or — no date, I have known many people to be cured of this distressing tendency. Your girl can be, too.

from Pueblo, Colo. He was granted his fourth visa extension Jan. 9 so he could stay in Russia to wait for Soviet permission to take his wife with him.

Sandor said today he hoped his wife would be able to leave with him Thursday when his Soviet visa expires.

If Viktorla's final permission does not come before then Sandor will have to leave — unless he can win another extension. If he leaves Viktorla would have to join him later in West Europe.

The lawyer met Viktorla on his first trip to Moscow in 1950. Government red tape delayed Viktorla's exit papers and Sandor applied personally to Communist Party leader Nikita Khrushchev for the necessary extensions.

In spite of the fact that it is over 90 per cent curable, skin cancer is responsible for about 3,500 deaths each year in the United States, says the American Cancer Society.

Phony Votes To Be Studied By Teamsters

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Teamsters Union said today its international executive board meeting here tomorrow will take up a protest that Harold Gibbons was elected last week as St. Louis Teamsters union president on "phony" votes.

Gibbons, vice president-elect of the international union and close associate of President-elect James R. Hoffa, was declared winner of the St. Louis post last Wednesday by the narrow margin of five votes.

The announced count was 76 votes for Gibbons and 71 for Elmer Gene Walla, who maintained Gibbons was elected by "phony" votes of Carnival and Allied Workers Local No. 447. Walla has protested that the Carnival Workers local never was accredited as part of St. Louis Teamsters Council No. 13.

Gibbons became president of the St. Louis council five years ago as an appointed trustee. The trusteeship was lifted some months ago and the election of officers called.

The executive board tomorrow is expected to authorize union President Dave Beck to make a committee to hold hearings and report back with recommendations on the St. Louis voting.

Texas A&M About Set to Pick a Coach

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—
The Texas A&M Board of Directors meet in special session today amid indications that the school's search for a football coach may be near an end.

The board was expected to formally cancel its instructions to a four-man directors subcommittee and hand the task of recommending a coach back to the Faculty Athletic Council.

The chairman of the faculty group, Dr. Chris Groneman, disclosed his group has stopped interviewing candidates. He refused to elaborate.

Asked if this means a coach has been recommended, Groneman replied: "I didn't say we did or we didn't."

Board Chairman W. T. Doherty
last week dissolved the Directors Athletic Committee, which had hunted unsuccessfully for a coach to succeed Paul (Bear) Bryant, who returned to Alabama, his alma mater.

The directors committee had been widely criticized for the independent manner in which it conducted coaches.

The dual post of athletic director and football coach pays an official $15,000 a year, plus a television contract. Other sources of income reportedly boosts the total take to $80,000 a year.

Dr. Groneman said the board has a three-page list of coaches suggested for the job. Among them: Jules V. Sikes, now at East Texas State.

Science Fails to Scare Gulls and Ducks

By DELOS SMITH
UP Science Editor
NEW YORK (UP) — It is the stern duty of this science reporter to report a scientific failure in the field of weapons development. The weapon was for use against wild ducks and sea gulls — to scare the daylights out of them, rather than hurt them. But it turned out that science doesn't yet know enough about those birds. This is no joke. Understand wild ducks cost Canadian farmers large sums annually, by helping themselves in grain fields. Sea gulls mess up air traffic by squatting in hundreds on the runways of some coastal airports. So any weapon which could scare them away and keep them away from places where they're not wanted, would be a Godsend. So G. J. Thiersen and E.A.G. Shaw of the Canadian National Research Council turned to ultrasonics. They're sound waves of such high frequency human ears don't hear them, but when they're high enough and intense enough, they can irritate ear drums and even damage them. The scientists began their work by finding out how high and intense these waves had to be in order to "irritate" Peking ducks. Those ducks are domesticated and can be worked with. But the family was developed out of the wild Mallard duck and the presumption would be that what irritates the former would also irritate the latter. Knowing the "irritation thresholds" of the Peking, the scientists moved their ultra-sound generators to farming areas. They discovered they could lift clouds of wild ducks into the air by irradiating their marshy resting places. The ducks were scared all right, but the trouble was, they didn't stay scared. They came right back. They got their "irritation thresholds" for gulls by experimenting with 11 which had been taken captive as fledglings. When they tried out these thresholds on wild gull squatters at a Montreal airport, the results were "quite erratic," they said in a report to the Acoustical Society of America. Ducks shake their heads, twitch their tails, open their mouths. Gulls seem to cringe, and their tails dip. With the gulls, there is a sudden and drastic increase in heart rate. But the rate quickly drops back to normal even while the ultrasonics continues.

ASC Not to Take More in Soil Bank

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, Monday instructed county ASC offices not to accept any more agreements placing crops in the federal acreage reserve. Clyde P. Liebong, state ASC administrative officer, said the committee met Monday and discussed county allocations, but will take up the matter again Thursday and Friday. Liebong said the U. S. department of agriculture set Arkansas' share of the corn soil bank at $198,200, or $35,624 less than what the farmers have asked for. He said 1,211 farmers in four counties signed agreements to place 39,319 acres of land in the rice acreage reserve program. They asked for $2,687,333. Also, 16,504 farmers

Refuses to Order Man Returned

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Tommy H. Russell, administrative assistant to Gov. Orval Faubus, today said he had refused to order James Bradley Henry, 35, returned to Nebraska to face a charge of kidnapping his own daughter. Russell deferred a decision in the case of Henry's mother, Mrs. Bertha Huddleston. Henry and his mother, both residents of North Little Rock, are charged in Nebraska with taking six-year-old Marilyn Sue Henry from a children's home in Nebraska in a tangled case involving custody of the little girl. Russell, an attorney, who handles extradition matters for Faubus, said he ruled against granting the requisition of Nebraska authorities for custody of Henry because six witnesses testified at a hearing yesterday that the man was in the North Little Rock area at the time Marilyn Sue was taken from the Lincoln home. Russell said it was a "clear case of mistaken identity" in regard to Henry. Russell said Mrs. Huddleston refused to name the man who accompanied her, but said that it was not Henry. Mrs. Herbert Martin and her husband, mother and stepfather of Marilyn Sue, are seeking custody of the child in Nebraska. The couple faces charges here of removing the child from Arkansas without proper authority. Dale Price, attorney for Henry and Mrs. Huddleston, today filed a new court petition asking that custody of Marilyn Sue again be awarded to Mrs. Huddleston. Similar orders have been made here previously. Price said a hearing would be postponed for probably about 60 days to give the Martins time to answer if they wish. Russell said no decision will be made on Mrs. Huddleston's requested extradition until after the court acts.

AMISH FUNERAL PROCESSION is the subject of this photograph titled "Mourning," when transmitted by The Associated Press for first publication January 16, 1957 — and Hope Star's editor considers it perhaps the best newspaper picture of 1957. The photograph originated at Pottstown, Pa., where nearly 100 of the traditional Amish square buggies loaded with mourners followed the hearse carrying Mrs. Malinda Stoltzfus, 89-year-old Amish Pennsylvanian to her last resting place. Eight hundred mourners attended all in the "plain" dress of the Amish. The Amish are a sect of the severest beliefs and practices — no automobiles, no motion pictures, no card-playing, no fine clothes, no dancing. . . . But they are a people of big barns, well-kept farms, and sizable bank accounts in south central and southeastern Pennsylvania. Years ago The Star's editor, motoring toward northern Pennsylvania met an Amish couple in one of these same square-rigged buggies just north of the Pennsylvania-Turnpike — and this Associated Press picture of only last year shows the Amish are unchanged to this day.

Credits Car Price Dip in Living Cost

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government reported today that a decline in how car prices kept living costs from advancing in December. They averaged the same as in November. Hersey Riley, Labor Department living cost chief, said he could not predict whether the current January living cost level will rise or drop from its present record high. The government index stayed at the same peak mark of 121.6 per cent of the 1947-49 average in December as was recorded for November. This is 3.1 per cent higher than a year earlier. The index has risen in 14 of the past 16 months. Lower prices for automobiles and apparel offset slight advances for food and other goods and services in December. New car prices declined 2.3 per cent as dealers began granting larger discounts on 1958 cars. Used cars also declined 1.4 per cent.

Would Reduce Number of Staff Chiefs

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chester W. Nimlitz, former top Navy officer, proposed today that the Joint Chiefs of Staff be reduced to three members. He told the Senate missile-satellite inquiry that the post of chairman of the top military advisers could be rotated among heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force. "This would remove one layer in this pyramid of the chain of command," Nimlitz said. The white-haired Nimlitz recalled that at one time during World War II, when he was a top commander in the Pacific, he favored a single chief of staff. That was when he had a sense of frustration waiting for decisions from Washington, he explained. But he said hindsight and experience have convinced him "I was wrong and I am now opposed to a single chief of staff." After World War II, Adm. Nimlitz served as chief of naval opera-

Industrial Group Pledges All of Money

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The First Arkansas Development Finance Corp. has obtained commitments for the entire million dollars it needs to begin operations. This was announced yesterday by J. V. Saterfield Jr., of Little Rock president of the corporation at a directors meeting. The directors instructed their attorneys to start preparing a case to test the 1957 legislative act which set up the corporation to help Arkansas' industrialization program. Local industrial corporations or industrialists may secure loans from the finance unit. It will issue 10 million dollars in bonds and the state will be allowed to buy the first five million dollars worth and half of any sold above that amount. One reason for the court test is to ascertain whether use of public funds for private purpose is legal. The corporation obtained its $900,000 in preferred stock from private utilities and rural electric co-operatives in Arkansas. The $100,000 in common stock was pledged by state businessmen.

Veteran Movie Operator Dies

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) — Isaac Walter Rodgers, 83, a veteran movie chain operator in southern Illinois and southeast Missouri, died today in Miami. Rodgers operated 11 theaters in Illinois, Missouri and northeast Arkansas. He started on his career in the south in 1896, showing three-minute hand cranked movies for five cents. Born in Neoga, Ill., Rodgers moved to Cairo, Ill., in 1921 and resided there until he went to Miami upon retirement after World War II. He and his wife started the Rodgers chain in 1914 by buying a movie house in Poplar Bluff, Mo. His son, Carson, operates the Rodgers chain.

EXCUSE FAILS

STOCKPORT, England (UP) — Daniel Roberts thought he had a good excuse for failing to buy a license for his television set, but was fined because it wasn't good enough. An official testified Tuesday that when he asked Roberts why he had no license, he replied: "The set has been running quite well without one."

State and industry doing fine

New arrivals; 10,203 new jobs announced by 108 new or expanded industries in Arkansas during 1957, and the state's industrial health continued fine. Despite the continued employment drop in certain forest product industries, the state is more than holding its own. And many of the announced new plants have not yet been staffed. New or expanded industries during the past three years will account for almost 30,000 jobs—the total number of manufacturing jobs in Arkansas in the middle 30's.
